On Wednesday, 10th October, 2012, the Universities Bill, 2012 was read a first time and referred to the relevant Departmental Committee of the House pursuant to the provisions of the Standing Order No. 111 of the National Assembly. The Bill further went through the Second Reading on Tuesday 20th and 21st November, 2012 and awaits the Committee of the Whole House.

The Departmental Committee on Education, Research and Technology during its 57th Sitting on Tuesday, 30th October, 2012 and the 59th Sitting on Thursday 1st November, 2012 held consultative meetings with various stakeholders where the Committee received and considered oral and written submissions from the stakeholders.

The Stakeholders included the Ministry of Higher Education, Science and Technology (MOHEST), the Kenya Private Sector Alliance, the Kenya National Association of Parents (KNAP), the Unites States International University (USIU), the Aga Khan University (East Africa), the National Association of Private Universities in Kenya (NAPUK), the Commission for Higher Education (CHE) and the National Council of Churches of Kenya among others.

COMMITTEE'S OBSERVATIONS AND CONCLUSIONS

The Committee observed and concluded that:

- i. The Universities Bill, 2012 was developed to align the university education sector to the Kenyan Constitution, 2010 and Vision 2030 and is based on the Policy Framework on the Education and Training, 2012. The Bill repeals various statutes that established the public universities and the Universities Act
- ii. The representation of various institutions and organizations especially the sponsors, religious entities, trade unions, students and the private sector in the management of universities needed to be enhanced in order to bolster the spirit of consultation and participation in decision making process.
- iii. The private investors needed a free hand in the management of the Universities and requested for flexibility in the constitution of the councils and Boards of Management. However, the role of the Commission for Higher Education as the regulatory body was supported by all stakeholders.
- iv. The role of the various regulatory bodies especially in the professional disciplines in accrediting and approving academic programmes was a recipe for duplication of roles between these bodies and the Commission for University education. In this regard, the Committee was categorical that the Commission for University Education should be the only institution empowered to accredit and approve academic programmes at the University level in the country while the role of the regulatory bodies in the various disciplines remains that of registering and licensing the graduates.
- v. The non-profit making universities had requested for inclusion of a clause that gives such universities the right to apply for tax exemptions. The Committee observed that although the request was restricted to the right to apply for tax exemption, this was a matter that was beyond the purview of the Committee.

- vi. The appointment of the retired vice chancellors and any other universities administrators from either the public or private universities as Commissioners of the Commission for University Education amounts to conflict of interest. Therefore, there was need to introduce an amendment that mitigated this phenomenon.
- vii. It was necessary that the Commission for University education has the powers to regulate supervise and monitor the quality and standards of university education in both the public and private universities.
